

Hi All

Last week police have located a Drivers licence in our District which has been altered. It is hard to tell the licence has been altered by just looking at it.

This altering has been done intentionally to provide a means to enter licensed premises in order to obtain alcohol by High School students.

If you were to look at your own licence and try to scratch the front or back of it with your fingernail, you will find that you cant. This is due to the polymer coating that is placed over the licence.

However, if you were to scratch the front of an altered licence you will be able to scratch the plastic that has been added by the forger. Another method to check is to look at the edge and you will also be able to separate the plastic from the licence.

These plastic covers have been added to hide the bumps created when the date of birth has been altered. Apart from this added plastic cover these licences look identical to a correct licence and still retain the hologram across them.

If you locate one of these licences, contact police immediately and retain the licence if you can. I have attached photographs of this altered licence and you can see where the plastic has been picked off.
